The American Society for Testing and Materials (ASTM) certify crash rated products using a larger sample of attack vehicles and impact speeds. ASTM uses additional abbreviations to communicate the approximate size of the test vehicle, the test vehicle's speed upon impact, and the depth of penetration.